Winter has blown in over the small island of Åstol on the west coast of Sweden and everyone starts preparing for Christmas.

Donna has finally taken root properly on the island. She has just completed her first art exhibition, and also joined the planning group for the upcoming Christmas market. Everything seems to be peace and joy.

When Lars, the son of the owners of the island's guesthouse, returns after many years of absence, the newfound harmony is disturbed.

At first, Lars has no plans to stay on the island. However when his mother asks him to clean out his grandmother's and grandfather's old house, before a sale he reluctantly agrees. Donna helps him with the cleaning and together they reveal secrets that make Lars look at his family with new eyes. Reluctantly Donna begins to develop unexpected feelings for Lars.

When a severe winter storm sweeps over the island, everything is turned upside down. Can old wounds be healed and new bonds forged before the Christmas holidays turn into one big chaos?

Shooting Stars for Christmas is the second part of Anne-Lie Högberg's series The Island of Islands. A wonderful Christmas novel about friendship, love, family and secrets from the past."
